Flite Fest 2015 recap

During a four-day stretch in the middle of July, the small town of Malvern, Ohio, nearly quadrupled in size when the second annual Flite Fest was held at the 1/2-mile-long private Furey Airport. AMA attended and sponsored this flying event. Check out AMA's event coverage, including photos and videos. In an exclusive interview with Josh Bixler and Austin Furey from Flite Test, the two discuss their plans to attend AMA Expo to assist in the education area. AMA is excited to welcome Flite Test to the event. Looking for more? Additional coverage from Flite Fest 2015 will be featured in an upcoming issue of Model Aviation.

#FantasyFreeFlight: recreating the 1915 National Model Aeroplane Competition

Have you ever wanted to apply the fun of fantasy football to model flying? AMA is excited to announce the opportunity to do just that with #FantasyFreeFlight! In 1915, 18 clubs competed for the Henry S. Villard Trophy. This summer, we're recreating this contest 21st century style, allowing you to form your own fantasy club with members who competed in the 1915 events. The competitors for the first event, Hand-Launched Distance, have already been posted and the results will be published tomorrow. Download your scorecard and choose your competitors now!

Refinishing Your Model

Some model aircraft look amazing with beautiful detail. Others, not so much - they only look best 400 feet away in the sky. If your aircraft could use a facelift, read Walt Moucha's tutorial, which will be featured in the August 2015 issue of Model Aviation. A little time and money is all it takes.
